Swami Vivekananda, once speaking in America, told of young man who came to a religious teacher and said that he wanted to find God. The sage smiled and said nothing. The young man returned time after time, ever repeating his desire, his longing to find God. After many days the sage told him to accompany him as he went to the river to take morning bath, and when both were in the river, the sage took hold of the young man and plunged him under the surface of the water and help him there. The young man struggled and struggled to shake off his hold. Finally, the sage raised him out of water, and asked him, "My son, what did you long for most when under water?" "A breath of air," gasped the youth. "Thus, would the would be disciple long after God if he would find him. If you have this longing after God, verily He shall be found by you," said the sage.

- i. Why did the young man go to the religious teacher?
- ii. What did the religious teacher do when approached for the first time?
- iii. Why did the young man repeat his visits?
- iv. What was he told after many days?
- v. What did the sage do when the young man obeyed him?
